I Wasn't Allowed to Test! Why Not?

In order to ensure that our tests have enough participants, we overbook by a small percentage. Occasionally, this means that more people attend than we are able to bring into the testing room. When this happens, the extra participants receive half of the testing payment (never less than $25, however), and are immediately eligible to test again.

The decision regarding who stays and who is released is not always based upon who arrives first. Sometimes, we choose to include a specific gender or ethnicity for their unique viewpoint. At other times, the decision may be based on how a tester answered questions in the online screener or when on the phone with one of our recruiting associates.
